ABSTRACT

A method of servicing construction equipment comprising forming an association of construction equipment manufacturers and providing a service agent of the association. The service agent refers a service need to a service dealer. The service agent is not an agent of the service dealer to whom the service need is referred.